The Art

Tim C. Abraham is a French-American muralist and illustrator who is currently living with his family in a school bus converted into a home on wheels.

Born in New York, he moved all over Europe and the United States getting influenced and inspired by both European classical art and American street art.

His current bus travels have allowed Tim to paint murals all over the US, from New York to Arizona, and he is looking forward to more.

Before he set out on his mural adventure, he had solo and group exhibits in the Tristate Area and has won awards for theater set design on the New York independent theater scene.

What he loves the most about mural art is the possibility to invite audiences into his creative world, capturing their imagination with a multitude of details to be discovered and interpreted.

Tim's motto is "Live, Laugh, Love " and he always tries to infuse it into his art inspiring good conversations and putting a smile on people's faces.
